ABBOT FIRE GROUP CELEBRATES LPCB APPROVAL

Abbot Fire Group, award winning specialists in fire prevention and safety, is proud to announce it's the first, and currently only, UK company to be approved by the Loss Prevention Certification Board (LPCB) to install and service Ansul restaurant fire suppression systems.

These sophisticated fire suppression systems are vital for any commercial kitchen as they respond within seconds to a fire break out. Perfectly suited for hotel kitchens, restaurants and fast food outlets, the Ansul system gives protection 24 hours a day, 7 days a week, therefore protecting premises even when they aren't manned.

The LPCB provides an independent 3rd party approval, through assessing and certifying fire and security systems and services. To have their approval is the ultimate mark of approval and is recognised throughout the fire industry.

Nigel Walton, Director at Abbot Fire Group, said, "At Abbot Fire Group we consistently work hard to maintain high standards in all areas of our business. We are therefore delighted to be the 1st and only company in the UK to have LPCB certification. Such 3rd party endorsement for our installation and servicing of Ansul kitchen suppression systems will ensure we are highly regarded within the fire industry which is fantastic".

Abbot Fire Group will be demonstrating how the Ansul kitchen suppression system works during demonstrations on their stand, J26, at International Firex at the NEC from Monday 16th – Thursday 19th May.

More information about the Ansul kitchen suppression system can be found at www.abbotfiregroup.co.uk.
